“Making History: Connect” Seeks Feedback on Library Projects, Services, and Collections

Contact: Sonya Coleman, 804.692.3755, sonya.coleman@lva.virginia.gov

For Immediate Release

Richmond, Virginia – The Library of Virginia’s new website, Making History: Connect (connect.virginiamemory.com), gathers feedback and opinions on Library projects and services. The more you tell us what you like, or what we're missing, the better we can meet your needs. You can help us brainstorm potential new directions for our projects, or tell us about things you've discovered in the collections. Quick polls will help us understand what you enjoy and what we might need to change.

The Library of Virginia is open to collaboration and new directions based on the needs of the communities we serve. We welcome and encourage citizen engagement. We want to share our processes and invite people into them when possible. Projects such as our crowdsourcing transcription site Making History: Transcribe (vamem.com/mht) have brought together archivists, high school students, genealogists, computer programmers, and community volunteers. Working together has taught us a lot, and we want to learn more!

The three areas we are soliciting public feedback on currently are Virginia Untold: The African American Narrative, Making History: Transcribe, and Visiting the Library of Virginia, either in person or online. If you have feedback or suggestions, please share them with us!
