

Few states have such a rich architectural heritage as Virginia. Virginia's public and private buildings provide a testimonial to its history and traditions as well as demonstrating the progressive evolution not only of Virginian, but also of American architecture in general. The goal of this guide is to point out to the researcher the major collections available at the Library of Virginia and suggest some additional bibliographies, books, and periodicals as beginning steps in the study of Virginia's impressive architectural legacy.

MANUSCRIPT AND PICTURE COLLECTIONS

Architectural Drawings and Plans

The Library of Virginia has impressive holdings of architectural plans and drawings documenting the rich heritage of the state. Municipal, state, private and business collections provide a picture of the varied building activity in Virginia. For detailed information on these holdings please consult Research Note 13, Architectural Drawings and Plans at the Library of Virginia by Vincent Brooks (October 2000), available at <http://www.lva.lib.va.us/whatwehave/map/rn_13arch.htm> and Landscape Architecture Resources at the Library of Virginia by Vincent Brooks (December 2000) available at <<http://www.lva.lib.va.us/whatwehave/map/landscape.pdf>>.

Early American History Research Reports. Williamsburg, Va.: Colonial Williamsburg Foundation; Guilford, Conn.: OPUS Publications, 1989. Fiche 84

This collection consists of 495 microfiche, the work of scholars at the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation over a period of sixty years. Each report is a thorough study of its subject, and includes bibliographies, indexes, maps and drawings. The reports are divided in five categories covering the areas of Archaeology, Architecture, Decorative Arts, History and Trades. The Architecture category not only includes architectural histories and reports for a number of restored colonial buildings, but also in-depth reports about a variety of topics, including landscape development, paint color, fencing, and window glass in the eighteenth century. There is a guide to the collection. (Ref. Z1237 C7).

Historic American Buildings Survey. Virginia. Cambridge, England: Chadwick-Healey; Teaneck, N.J.: Somerset House, 1980. Fiche 27
 In 1933, the National Park Service, Department of the Interior, established the Historic American Buildings Survey (HABS) to provide work to architects, draftsmen and photographers left jobless by the Great Depression. The program is still active today and continues to collect drawings, photographs and descriptions of buildings, documenting the rich and diverse architectural heritage of the nation. The National Park Service administers this program, but the collection is housed at the Library of Congress. The microfiche collection at the Library of Virginia covers material received by the Library of Congress up to the end of 1979 for the state of Virginia.

In 1969, the Historic American Engineering Record (HAER) was also established to preserve America's industrial and engineering heritage. Thanks to the work of HABS/HAER an archive of historic architecture has been created, which provides significant primary source material for historic preservation.

The HABS/HAER collection is also available online from the Library of Congress at:
<<http://memory.loc.gov/ammem/hhhtml/hhhome.html>>.

National Register of Historic Places. Virginia. Teaneck, N.J.: Chadwick-Healey, 1984. Fiche 66

The National Register of Historic Places is the official list of sites of unique character and identity that provide a tangible and irrefutable testimony of America's past. The material in this fiche collection covers the state of Virginia and includes the "Inventory-Nomination Forms" with information about each property, photographs and maps through December 1982. A searchable database on places listed or determined as eligible is available at <<http://www.nr.nps.gov/>>.

Virginia WPA Historical Inventory Project. Film 509

The Virginia Works Project Administration (WPA) Historical Inventory is a collection of photographs, maps, and detailed reports documenting many 18th- and 19th- century buildings in communities across Virginia. WPA workers in the 1930s described, assessed, and photographed early structures (many of which do not survive today), creating a unique record of Virginia's past. The Library of Virginia's Digital Library program has a searchable database of the project, <<http://eagle.vsla.edu/vhi/>> that includes digital images of pictures, maps, and survey reports.

The Charles F. Gillette Collection

The Library of Virginia houses the Charles F. Gillette Collection which consists of architectural landscape drawings and a collection of more than 890 photographs from the Charles F. Gillette Papers, 1918–1969, depicting Virginia houses, estates, gardens, and other private and corporate landscape projects designed by landscape architect Charles Freeman Gillette (1886–1969). The photograph collection is available on line at: <<http://eagle.vsla.edu/gillette/virtua-basic.html>>.

Pictures

School Buildings Service Photographs

This collection consists of photographs from the Virginia State Department of Education depicting elementary and secondary school buildings across the state. The more than 3,000 photographs were taken between 1920 and 1970 as part of a school reform and consolidation movement. Available online at: <<http://eagle.vsla.edu/school/virtua-basic.html>>.

Pictures, Photographs, etc.

The Picture Collection of the Library of Virginia has a large collection of Virginia architectural images filed by county and building name. The department also houses extensive files of original Virginia Historic Landmarks Commission (VHLC) nomination reports and original HABS reports, filed by county, title, and sometimes by the owner's name. Many of these WPA photographs taken during the 1930s are part of the online Virginia Historical Inventory collection, but there are other WPA photographs housed in the files in the Picture Collection. The collections also include lithographs, engravings and other fine prints of older historic structures in Virginia, particularly Richmond, as well as photographs of hotels, churches, stores, jails, taverns, courthouses, banks, and diners.

Several indexes and databases of photograph collections from various libraries around the state are available online at:

The Picture Collection is open by appointment 9:00–12:00 and 1:30–4:30 Tuesday–Friday. (Telephone 804-692-3703)
